

FROM FIRST RACKS TO A PIPELINE OF UP TO 512 NVIDIA HGX B300 SYSTEMS

May 20 – August 27, 2026

Azio's GPU systems business started with a handful of server racks. By late August it had an agreement covering up to 512 of NVIDIA's HGX B300 systems.

In May 2026, before the merger closed, the company reported that Azio AI had delivered the first eight server racks under an initial infrastructure program and had begun initial deliveries of NVIDIA B200 GPU systems.

After the merger, the business grew quickly. On August 6, 2026, Azio AI Holdings announced an agreement with Power Champion Investment Limited, the same counterparty as its July hosting agreement, covering the purchase of up to 128 NVIDIA HGX B300 systems for deployment at U.S.-based AI infrastructure facilities. Three weeks later, on August 27, the agreement was expanded to cover up to 384 additional systems, for a total of up to 512.

Using an assumed market price of $600,000 per system, roughly the midpoint of a current range of $472,000 to $720,000, the company estimates the relationship represents a cumulative sales pipeline value of approximately $307 million. This is a pipeline estimate, not backlog, contracted revenue or a forecast. The purchases are subject to future purchase orders and customary conditions, and as of August 27 no purchase orders had been issued under the expanded agreement.

“This agreement reflects continued momentum in our commercial relationship with Power Champion and demonstrates growing demand for enterprise AI infrastructure.” — Chris Young, Chief Executive Officer [\[Quote from press release, Aug. 6, 2026\]](#)

The GPU business is a separate commercial line from Azio's Atlas One campus. But the two are designed to work together: hardware relationships can create demand for the kind of power-backed hosting infrastructure Azio is building in South Texas.

“Our model is to supply the hardware and then offer the power and hosting to run it. We will report progress as purchase orders are received.” — Jason Maddox, Chief Financial Officer [\[DRAFT QUOTE – pending approval\]](#)
