They Plant Trees to Help Protect the Planet

By Laurie Violette

When Dr. Susan in 1971, "The Lorens" is a contemporary issue and one that has been a concern for people around the world. People have been concerned about the environment for many years, and the Lorens have been involved in promoting this issue. "When someone like you wants to make a difference and work hard, something good is going to happen. It's true!"

Enter We Plant Trees, a non-profit organization that cares a whole lot about the environment, trees, and doing something about it. Founded in 2003 by successful father and son, Frederick Beer is working to make a difference. He and his family have always worked hard to protect the environment. They support it financially, and donations are always welcome.

We Plant Trees are the people who are doing the hard work behind the scenes to help the environment. They support it financially, and donations are always welcome.

They are the heroes, the people who are working hard to protect the environment.
